

Aaron is an intense atheist. I state, even swear, that I am God. This is chemistry for hatred between me and my brother. There is an inherent danger in saying "I am God". That danger is Aaron. I'm asking for protection.

Spring of 2010, Aaron made an unannounced visit to see my kids. He badmouthed me to my daughter, Nicole. She later told me about it. When asked of his motivations, he refused to answer, and refused to apologize for his permission-neglect and ill-behavior.

Now Aaron and I go way back, and it has been getting worse since 1999, when I initially realized I was Jesus, and declared mentally ill as a result. My sister, Stephanie died recently. Aaron and I had a very serious argument about her death concerning Aaron's involvement prior/during/post to her death.

I do not know why Aaron needs to be involved in my family. I feel Aaron thinks he has free rein in his involvement with my kids because I am declared mentally ill and he apparently can do anything with my family, according to my mother. My recent argument with Aaron indicates to me that there is a looming threat of violence between the two of us, and that may be passed on to my kids because he hates God and hates me because I am God.

I think Aaron may envy me and my family, and is in need of one of his own. He now has Stephanie's kids, which makes me further suspicious of his involvement in Steph's death, still under investigation.

I feel Aaron is stalking me and my family as a result of my Jesus life and hatred toward God. I do not need any more interaction between my family and Aaron. He hates every fabric of my existence, and should have no part in my family relations. I would like this order of protection for me and my kids.
